What's new in the GGG 2020 Questionnaire?

Something old, something new

The new GGS Baseline Questionnaire contains topics asked in previous rounds of the GGS as well as several new questions and innovations. It is therefore comparable to past surveys while embracing a number of new themes which are of increasing concern to policymakers: economic uncertainty, digitalization of the life course, mobility and migration, the Sustainable Development Goals and many more. Besides, the questionnaire was also restructured and re-designed to work better online. A new research brief gives an overview of the questions and overarching themes that have been added to the GGS. Please find it among our technical papers on the GGP homepage.

The GGP has recently launched a new webinar series called GGP-Connect aimed at showcasing the work of national teams and providing insights into the new round of GGS data collection.

In the first webinar in this series, Prof. Martin Kreidl (Masaryk University) presented the GGS Pilot conducted in the Czech Republic. Due to the COVID-19 pandemic and a nation-wide lockdown, the initially planned face-to-face interviews could not be conducted. As a solution, data was collected online with a smaller, semi-professional sample (1300 participants) while retaining the standard GGS questionnaire. Amongst other, Martin Kreidl discussed the change in study design, recruitment of participants for CAWI and the representativeness of the new sample. A recording of the webinar will be made available on our homepage soon.
